Parents' and Professionals' Perceptions towards Support for Children with Communication Disorders in Preschool Settings in the North West Bank in Palestine: Preliminary data from the pilot study

Hala marwan Jarrar *

Anabela Cruz dos Santos

Suggested Citation:

New Trends and Issues Proceedings on Humanities and Social Sciences.

Abstract

* Hala marwan Jarrar

E-mail address

1. Introduction

D

O

Therefore, the objectives of this study are:

- T
O
- T
O
- D
- D

2. Methods

O
T

O

O

T

H

61

H

Parents' Perceptions towards
Support for Children with Communication Disorders in Preschool Settings in the North West Bank in Palestine"

Professionals' Perceptions towards Support for Children with Communication Disorders in Preschool Settings in the North West Bank in Palestine"

information
children with communication disorders

Socio - demographic professionals' perceptions towards support for information

perceptions towards support for children with communication disorders,

Socio - demographic parents'

3. Results and Discussion

H

O

M

D

D M T

O

Third result: The findings that are related to the study hypotheses of the parents of children in preschools.

O

O

T

-

4. Conclusions

T O

Acknowledgements

References

The International Journal of Children’s Rights 12

T

T

D

T

T

H

Disability Policy Studies 18

Journal of

M

H

Teaching special students in the mainstream T T

D M M T

Supporting children with communication difficulties in inclusive settings: School-based language intervention. T .

O D

Psychometric Theory 3 Edition (Edited by: Nunnally JC, Bernstein IH).

D T

Annual Report. Palestine Children–Issues and Statistics.

Child Statistics Series O

T MD

Research and Practice for Persons with Severe Disabilities 25